H+H Background factory information

Eighteen months ago we planned for H+H UK to have an entirely new aircrete block production line up and running after just a three month shutdown at our main Borough Green factory. Effectively just before the Christmas break at the end of 2017, the factory was closed and completely stripped out to allow a £10M refurbishment to take place. By early March 2018, the first products started to come off the line. In a buoyant market producing strong demand and tight supply, the decision to take one third of our manufacturing capacity out of production was always going to be high risk. Looking back, with the new factory now producing high quality blocks ahead of schedule, that risk was clearly worth taking.

No photos in the factory please and we may have to limit the visit to the factory of any directly competing manufacturers for Competition Act reasons.
